Service Deferment Test Slated

Selective service college qualification tests will be given at El Camino college November 17, Merl F. Sloan, director of student personnel, announced today.

The test, designed to serve requirements for full-time college students who wish deferment from the service, will be of three hours duration. Prior to taking the test, students must go to any selective service local board for a bulletin of information, an application, and a mailing envelope, according to Norman H. Scarlett, who will supervise the administration of tests at El Camino. Application forms for taking the tests must be postmarked by midnight, November 2, Scarlett advised.

El Camino college will be one of approximately 1000 examination centers where tests will be offered.

Results of the examination will be sent to the local draft boards for consideration and approval.
